NAVAL REVIEW.

Magnificent Marine Pageant at New York.

GREAT WAR-SHIPS IN LINE.

President Cleveland Reviews the International Fleet.

All the World Out to See—A City Afloat and Multitudes Watch the Spectacle From the Shores—At Night a Splendid Show—Search Lights Rive the Mists and Colored Fires Outline the Anchored War-Ships The Grand Ball—Unique Land Parade.

The Columbian Naval Review in New York Harbor was a grand success. Our greatest peaceful naval event, joined in by all the leading naval powers, is now a part of history bigger than that of our country. It marks an epoch in the chronicles of the globe itself. The collection of warships was the greatest ever known. Ten Nations were represented and more than 10,000 officers and men participated. So large a number of steamboats, pleasure craft and tugboats was never before congregated in the Hudson River, while hundreds of thousands beheld the magnificent spectacle from either shore. The guns of the navies in the midst of it all paid honors to the President of the Republic, as, surrounded by his Cabinet, and standing on the bridge of the Dolphin, he moved through a double line of war ships over three miles in length. The salute to President Cleveland was a salute to the United States of America through its Chief Executive, and history does not record another instance in which so many Nations united in doing honor to a sister commonwealth. The foreign States which joined in the historic event were France, Russia, England, Brazil, Argentina, Germany, Spain, Italy and Holland. It was a sight to stir men's souls, to send the blood tingling through their veins, a sight to make them feel that the brotherhood of man is something more than an empty sound.

REAR-ADMIRAL GHERARDI.

Never before has the Port of New York been so generally decorated. By the Port of New York is meant not only the harbors fronting on the North and East Rivers, but also Brooklyn, Hoboken and Jersey City. Even the ferry boats, unsightly as they usually are, were decked out in bright array and the great transatlantic steamships were all dressed in the vari-colored flags of the international code of signals. The big storehouses and elevators had plenty of American flags flying from the roofs.

10:30 a. m. was the hour fixed for the review. It actually took place between 1 and 2 p. m. Rain began to fall shortly after 4 o'clock in the morning and continued in a steady downpour until noon. At 10 o'clock President Cleveland sent an order from the Victoria Hotel postponing the review till 1 o'clock. Two reasons were assigned for this act: first, that the Signal Service Bureau reported a hope of better weather in the afternoon; second, that Secretary of the Navy Hilary A. Herbert's physical condition was such that exposure might endanger his health.

The ships of war stretched up the North River in two parallel lines from the Brazilian ship Republica and the American monitor Miantonomoh, which lay opposite Twenty-eighth street, on the south, to the British flagship Blake and the American flagship Philadelphia, opposite Nineteenth street on the north. A little way south of this double column of steel battleships and off Twenty-third street lay the United States dispatch vessel Dolphin awaiting the arrival of the President. North of the assembled fleets and opposite Ninety-third street were the facsimiles of the three world famed caravels.

STEEL-PROTECTED CRUISER PHILADELPHIA.

Still further up the river, in front of the Santa Maria and at the head of the whole fleet, lay the United States ship Enterprise, to mark the point around which the people's navy would be permitted to turn on its way down the New York side of the channel after having advanced northward along the Jersey shore.

The warships were lined up in this order:

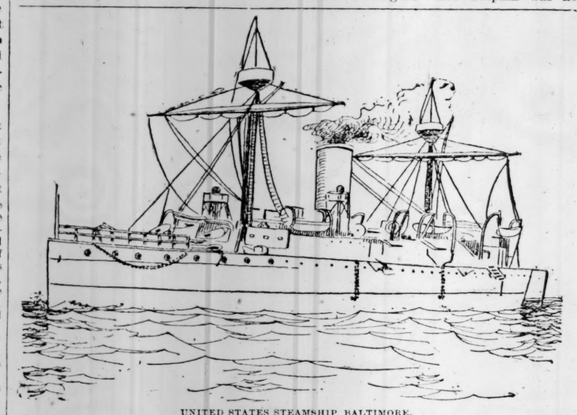
Around these forty vessels was formed, at 9 o'clock, a cordon of seventy-five tugs, revenue cutters and launches, under the control of the National, State and city governments. No vessels except those which were to take part in the reviewing ceremonies were allowed within the cordon until the review was over. The patrol service was perfect.

By 1 o'clock the entire river between the western patrol lines and the Jersey shore, and northward along the whole length of the fleet of war ships, was literally covered by a compact mass of yachts, tugs, barges, excursion boats, iron steamers and every sort of craft to be found in these waters. From the decks of the General Slocum, as she steamed up along the line of war ships to her position between the caravels and the Philadelphia, bearing Governor Flower, his staff and the State Legislature and Judiciary, the people's Navy looked like a floating Fourth of July.

President Cleveland and his party took carriages at the Victoria Hotel at 1 o'clock and drove at once to the foot of West Twenty-third street. In the party were Secretary Gresham, Mr. and Mrs. Bayard, Secretary and Mrs. Carlisle, Secretary Lamont and Mrs. Lamont, Mr. and Mrs. Bissell, and Attorney-General Olney.



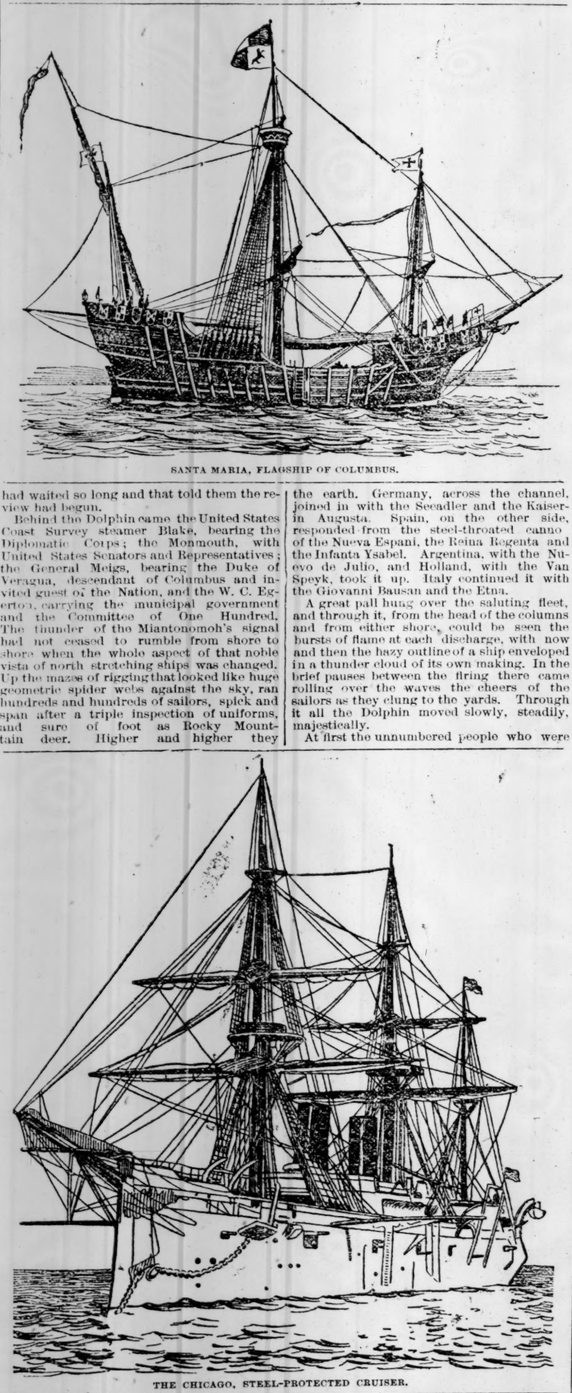
UNITED STATES STEAMSHIP BALTIMORE.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland were accompanied by Private Secretary Thurber and Lieutenant Wood. At the pier three steam launches were in waiting, one from the Miantonomoh, one from the Concord and one from the Dolphin. The President and Mrs. Cleveland went in the launch from the Dolphin, Secretary Smith went with them. As the President stepped into the steam launch at 1:14 o'clock, and at the instant his foot touched the boat the President's flag was unfurled at the bow.

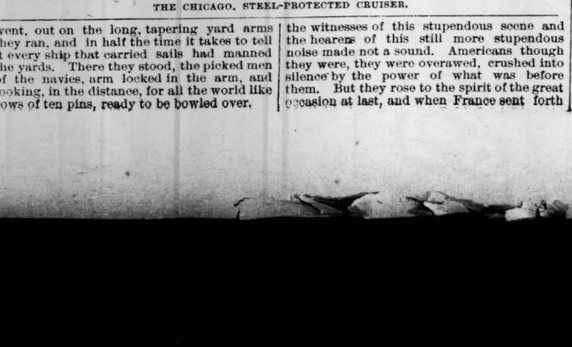
The Dolphin was reached at 1:18 o'clock, and as the President mounted the gangway and trod the deck the guns of the ship fired the National salute. "Up anchor" was the next order, and as the vessel floated free with the tide she fired a single gun as a signal to the waiting Miantonomoh.

Down under the deck of the great monitor stood a Lieutenant, hold in his hand a rubber bulb. As the Dolphin fired the signal gun an officer on the monitor's deck signaled to the Lieutenant below. Forth from a huge ten-inch gun sprang a pillar of fire and smoke that extended 200 feet over the sea and hid the ship. A crash and a roar that shook all things on land and sea came over the water. It was a terrific concussion, and it took 250 pounds of powder to make it. That was the signal for which the multitudes had waited so long and that told them the review had begun.

Behind the Dolphin came the United States Coast Survey steamer Blake, bearing the Diplomatic Corps; the Monmouth, with United States Senators and Representatives; the General Meigs, bearing the Duke of Veragua, descendant of Columbus and invited guest of the Nation, and the W. C. Egerton, carrying the municipal government and the Committee of One Hundred. The thunder of the Miantonomoh's signal had not ceased to rumble from shore to shore when the whole aspect of that noble vista of north stretching ships was changed. Up the mazes of rigging that looked like huge geometric spider webs against the sky, ran hundreds and hundreds of sailors, spick and span after a triple inspection of uniforms, and sure of foot as Rocky Mountain deer. Higher and higher they went, out on the long, tapering yard arms they ran, and in half the time it takes to tell it every ship that carried sails had manned the yards. There they stood, the picked men of the navies, arm locked in the arm, and looking, in the distance, for all the world like rows of ten pins, ready to be bowled over.



SANTA MARIA, FLAGSHIP OF COLUMBUS.

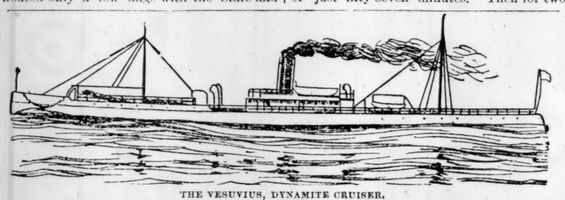


THE CHICAGO, STEEL-PROTECTED CRUISER.

At the pier the snow-white Dolphin moved with dignified, leisurely pace along the gun-guarded, steel-walled lane, ship after ship shot out red tongues of flame and belched clouds of white smoke across her path, flame meeting flame, and the smoke of the opposing broadsides blending its rounding clouds into a dense rounded mass.

The familiar figure of the President was in full relief as he stood, almost alone, far aft on the poop of the yacht, and those who did not know him guessed who he was, because he alone lifted his silk hat as he came abreast of each fire-belching vessel. Never, except in war, if even then, was there heard such a stentorian expression of a human emotion. And never before in any land did any crowned monarch receive such homage of so many Nations as was thus bestowed upon this plain black-coated American, who, as the representative of the Republic, received the salute that is prescribed for royalty.

Behind the lovely white yacht fell in the white American Blake and then came the big Monmouth. Lastly followed the trim yacht-like ordnance boat General Meigs, having on board the lineal descendant of Columbus, the Duke de Veragua. The Dolphin was not decorated except with the flags of the President and the Secretary of the Navy and the glorious ensign of the United States. The Blake was decorated with a rainbow of color. The Monmouth had her own bunting and the General Meigs floated only a few flags with the Stars and Stripes astern. These five boats carried the official party.



THE VESUVIUS, DYNAMITE CRUISER.

Brazil, on the New York side of the fleet, began saluting the uproar with Republica and Tiradentes, and in a moment more the heavy guns of her great battleship Aquidaban shook the earth. Germany, across the channel, joined in with the Seeadler and the Kaiserin Augusta. Spain, on the other side, responded from the steel-throated cañon of the Nueva Espani, the Reina Regenta and the Infanta Ysabel. Argentina, with the Nuevo de Julio, and Holland, with the Van Speyk, took it up. Italy continued it with the Giovanni Bausan and the Etna.

A great pall hung over the saluting fleet, and through it, from the head of the columns and from either shore, could be seen the bursts of flame at each discharge, with now and then the hazy outline of a ship enveloped in a thunder cloud of its own making. In the brief pauses between the firing there came rolling over the waves the cheers of the sailors as they clung to the yards. Through it all the Dolphin moved slowly, steadily, majestically.

At first the unnumbered people who were at certain spots on shore, then turned far up the Hudson, making objects plainly visible at a distance of five miles. Following came another signal and simultaneously every light in the fleet was turned toward the zenith. Slowly the rays converged until they formed the apex of a brilliant silvery pyramid of incalculable height. Experts said it could have been seen seventy-five miles away in any direction. It was a sight never before seen and never to be forgotten by the land lubbers. In conclusion, the operators gave some examples of high art in ray-projecting and described various figures on the heavens. It lacked but an hour of midnight when the black night conquered and closed in upon the scene, turning the glory of the day into treasured memory.

The ball at the Madison Square Garden was the crowning feature of the day. Handsome women in beautiful dresses, brave men in glittering uniforms from many lands and distinguished citizens in sober garb were there. The company was reckoned in thousands and not an untoward event marred the pleasure of the evening. The City of New York was the host and the Admirals, their staff officers, and the captains of the squadrons of war ships sent here by the great Nations of the world to join with Miss Columbia in the happy festival of the Columbian year were the especially honored guests. President Cleveland, Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, was there. The Duke and Duchess of Veragua were present. Secretary and Mrs. Gresham, Secretary and Mrs. Morton, Secretary and Mrs. Hoke Smith, Secretary and Miss Herbert and others of the President's official family circle attended. Governor Flower and a host of State dignitaries, Mayor and Mrs. Gilroy, Judges of the United States Supreme Court, Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, and a number of other distinguished visitors from other States made up, with the cream of New York society, a gathering that would be historic in itself. The American Navy was represented by Rear Admirals Gherardi, Benham and Walker, and by many officers of minor rank. Major Generals Schofield and Howard and other distinguished officers represented the army. There were titled and honored representatives of the navies of Great Britain, Russia, France, Italy, Spain, Brazil, Argentina, Germany and the Netherlands, all resplendent in uniform. Fully 8000 people took part in, or beheld, the great spectacle, made magnificent by the uniforms of the naval and military guests, the gowns of the women and by the glorious array of the products of decorative skill.

On the day after the naval review the land parade was held. It was a picturesque affair, with all the jolly jack tars in their vari-colored uniforms. The parade started from Forty-second street and Fifth avenue. The route was down Fifth avenue to Washington Square, through Waverly place to Broadway, to the City Hall, where the entire command passed before the Governor of the State, the Mayor of the city and the visiting officers, paying them the honor of a marching salute. Two reviewing stands had been erected by the Committee of One Hundred, one at Madison Square and the other in City Hall Park. The invited guests saw the passing show from these vantage points. Governor Flower and his staff were in the parade. He followed the mounted police, escorted by Troop A. At the City Hall Park he left the line to review the procession. Then he joined Mayor Gilroy in the Governor's Room of the City Hall to assist him in the reception to the Admirals and other officers of the visiting fleet.

The order of the parade follows: Mounted Police; Details from the United States Army and Engineer Corps; the Admirals of the American and Foreign Fleets, with their staffs and commanding officers, in carriages. First Division—United States Sailors and Marines. Second Division—Sailors and Marines of the Foreign fleets. Third Division—The Commander-in-Chief and Staff, Troop A, as personal escort; Brigadier-General Louis Fitzgerald and Staff, Signal Corps, First Brigade; the Provisional Regiment, composed of twelve selected companies from the State of New York: Sixty-ninth Regiment, Eight Regiment, Ninth Regiment, Twenty-second Regiment, Twenty-third Regiment, Seventh Regiment, Twelfth Regiment, Seventy-first Regiment, First Battery, Second Battery, Naval Reserves, State of Massachusetts; Naval Reserves, State of New York.

THE CASTINE, STEEL GUNBOAT.

Charleston, whose decks were cleared for action in the harbor of Acapulco, did her share; the Yorktown passed it to the Chicago; the famous Baltimore helped; the Bennington and Bancroft, with the Rynda, General Admiral and Dimitri Donskoi of Russia pounded away, and finally the whole tremendous salute wound up with a grand octet, in which the San Francisco, Atlanta, Newark and Philadelphia had for their partners the British fleet, composed of the Tartar, Magicienne, Australia and Blake.

The most thrilling moment of the review was when the Dolphin cast anchor at the northern end of the column and "dressed ship," her bunting going aloft with the stage-like precision. Every pilot opened wide the valve of his whistle. The reports from the guns of the Blake and the Philadelphia were lost in the roar of jubilation. It was a picture that will never fade from the memory of those who saw it.

For nearly two hours afterward the thousands of pleasure boats came dancing around the pivotal vessel, the Enterprise. They were filled with humanity, brilliant with every hue of the rainbow and sending forth sounds of joyous music.

In sight of the picturesque caravels, and between the floating fortresses of the American and English Admirals, the Dolphin dropped her white anchor, and the cheering of hundreds of thousands of men upon the land and water struggled weakly against the fiendish tooting of a myriad of steam whistles. When their smoke cleared away the steel-sided passage between the war ships was seen to be dotted with the tiny gigs and cutters of nine Admirals and thirty-five war Captains hastening to greet the President and his party. The beautiful mistress of the White House was by the President's side typifying the manifold charms of mind and person for which Columbia's daughters are world famous.

The passage of the President up through the fleet had lasted from 1:18 o'clock to 2:15, or just fifty-seven minutes. Then for two hours the President entertained the Admirals and other dignataries on board the Dolphin, and mutual and sincere congratulations were exchanged over the unqualified success of the review.

The cabin of the Dolphin was a pretty sight. It was crowded to its utmost capacity with men in gorgeous uniforms, and in great contrast to them all was the sombre clothing worn by the President and the members of his Cabinet. The foreign officers were introduced to Mrs. Cleveland. In her simple gown she was a striking figure amid all the gold lace and brilliant coloring.

The Dolphin reached her anchorage a little after 2 o'clock, and the reception was over about 4:50. Immediately after the reception Mrs. Cleveland was placed in a launch, and with Postmaster-General and Mrs. Bissell was taken to Jersey City, where she took a special train to Washington. Private Secretary Thurber accompanied the party.

At 4:55, the reception to the Admirals having ended, they took their leave of the President and departed for their own ships. A few moments afterward President Cleveland disembarked, and was taken in a launch to the foot of Ninety-eighth street, where carriages were waiting to convey him and the Presidential party to the Victoria Hotel.

As the President's flag was lowered on the Dolphin the final honors to the Chief Executive were paid by the whole fleet at once, each vessel of the thirty-five firing twenty-one guns. The tumult made by the 735 separate discharges all combined in an interval of about three minutes, far excelled all previous noises, and is beyond words to describe. When it died away the great review was over. All that was left of it was a ringing in the ears, a pall of smoke disappearing over the Jersey shore and a never-to-be forgotten memory.

Then the flagship Philadelphia, the floating office of Commander-in-Chief Gherardi, slipped silently from her moorings and stemmed the swift tide to a point opposite the tomb of General Grant, and there fired a salute to the memory of him whose birthday it was.

When night fell the war ships held the multitude upon the shores and on the steamboats by a superb spectacle with signal lights, flash lights, search lamps and fireworks. The proud English cruiser Blake led all the rest with a brilliant night dress of electric jewels, which flung her outlines in lines of fire against the sombre background of the cloudy night. At the end of all the Blake showed to what lengths the English Vice-Admiral was willing to carry his friendly feeling by flashing upon the deck which he commands a fiery figure of Washington, the man who led these colonies in war upon his kingdom. For hours the sullen sky was criss-crossed with paths of brilliant flame, and the horizon served as a background for colored signal lights and glorious pyrotechnics. The American ships showed the many ways in which the lights are used in active warfare to protect themselves from attacks of those marine terrors, torpedo boats. At times the projected rays were concentrated Tenderness.

Not unto every heart is God's good gift
Of simple tenderness allowed; we meet
With love in many fashions when we lift
First to our lips life's waters bitter-sweet.
Love comes upon us with restless power
Of curbless passion, and with headstrong will
It plays around like April's breeze and shower,
Or calmly flows a rapid stream and still.
It comes with blessedness unto the heart
That welcomes it aright, or, bitter fate!
It wrings the bosom with so fierce a smart,
That love, we cry, is crueler than hate.
And then, ah me, when love has ceased to bless
Our broken hearts cry out for tenderness.

We long for tenderness like that which hung
About us, lying on our mother's breast!
A selfish feeling, that no pen or tongue
Can praise aright, since silence sings it best,
A love, as far removed from passion's heat
As from the chilliness of its dying fire;
A love to lean on when the falling feet
Begin to totter, and the eyes to tire.
In youth's bright heydey hottest love we seek,
The reddest rose we grasp—but when it dies
God grant the latter blossoms, violets meek,
May spring for us beneath life's Autumn skies!
God grant some loving one be near to bless
Our weary way with simple tenderness.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN.

BY L. W. KING.

He wondered as he rang the front door bell what Sophie would be like.

He had met Belle Bradley on 23d street that morning, and had stopped to speak to her at the door of a large shop. As he lifted his hat and bade her au revoir she said: "Oh, Sophie, the little sister you know, is home from school for good now. Come in this afternoon and I will introduce you to our 'baby!'" She laughed, and then he laughed, thinking a little girl in short frocks an odd pretense for his calling so soon again.

He was a pretty good-looking fellow, as men go; big and athletic, but a trifle old; not blase youth, but really getting on in years.

Well, when he rang the Bradleys' door bell that afternoon, as I said, he wondered what little Sophie would be like. He was fond of children.

He was shown to the well-known parlor, where the gathering afternoon shadows made the bright carpet and pretty furnishings look more attractive than ever. As he glanced toward the window he saw seated there, busily plying her needle and unheeding all else, a little, slim, fair-haired girl, with serious blue eyes and such soft, white hands that he could not help noticing them.

His first idea was to retreat; his second to cough and await the result. The girl started, listened and stopped sewing. He coughed again, timidly, and then she looked at him.

As she rose she blushed a beautiful crimson from the pretty throat right up to her forehead, whereon lay soft golden curls.

"I beg pardon," he stammered, quite as much embarrassed as this damsel whom he had stumbled upon. "But I—I came to see Miss Bradley. My name is Marley—Jack Marley! I'm really awfully sorry I disturbed you."

His contrition was so real, and he looked so miserable that the girl smiled—a smile that slowly parted the red lips and lurked in her dimples.

When she smiled like that, Jack smiled too, and after that the "mauvais honte" of the meeting was over.

"I have heard of you," she told him naively, "from my sister. You know I am—er—Sophie."

"Really. Why, I thought," he stammered, "I—that is—you have got on long dresses, haven't you?"

She laughed merrily. "Did you think I was a little girl? Well, I'm not big, and I'm not very wise, but I'm quite grown up, I assure you. Oh, I am afraid Belle forgot you were coming. She went out in the carriage with mamma. Will you wait for her, or?"—

"Thank you. I'll wait if I may," he hastened to say; "if it won't disturb you!"

"Not at all," she assured him, as she sank into the depths of a big chair, where she looked smaller than ever.

Somehow every now and then a sense of age oppressed him in contrast to her youth and girlishness, and made him more uncomfortable in the thought than he had ever been before.

After ten minutes he knew she was glad to be at home, though it had been a sorrow to leave the school where she had been very happy.

"Really spoiled," she said. "You see I was so little, and they made a pet of me," she laughed in a bright shy way.

There came the sound of opening doors and women's voices. The tete-a-tete was interrupted. Jack Marley rose and shook hands with Miss Bradley.

* * * * * *

At the end of the season Jack had seen a great deal of Sophie. He was always a welcome visitor at her mother's house, and as he looked back over the days which had passed since their first meeting it worried him to think how the hours spent with her had grown part of his life.

His friends had begun to comment upon "Bachelor Jack's" infatuation, and he never even tried to hide it. To young Strange he even confided his "foolishness"—when in the mood. He had introduced the young man to his divinity and often wondered at his lack of enthusiasm on the subject.

Ned Strange was in that period of cynicism common to the youth and he laughed scornfully over the fact of "old Marley's being in love!" What could such a grave and reverend seignor see in a little, simple innocent girl. He (Strange) thought it wrong to bring up a girl like that.

This was at first, but by the time Sophie had made her debut, creating quite a furor with her charming face, young Strange silently succumbed, and, though he never admitted it, in his heart he was one of Sophie's lovers.

One day Strange was sitting in the Bradley's parlor waiting, when Marley came in. His grave face and a restlessness in his manner told that something was "up." He flung himself down on the sofa and began at once.

"Ned, you and I have always been friends, have we not? I did you a service once; I want something from you in return." He laughed somewhat constrainedly. "You've known from the first that I loved Sophie Bradley. I told you when I brought you here, old man. Yes, I know I'm too old and serious, but it's just this—I love her so that I must know my fate. Whatever she decides I shall accept without a word. If she should care only Heaven knows what it would mean to me! If not—well, God help me! Ned, will you—tell her for me? I'm a coward, man, when I think of this," and he ran a hand to his gray hairs. "I have no right to ask her, but—Oh, you can plead my cause. Tell her no younger man could love her as—I—do. Ned, will you do this?"

The younger man had grown livid. He did not look up, but he muttered hoarsely, "Yes."

Just then they heard Sophie singing as she came in from the hall. Jack escaped into the back room.

"How do you do, Mr. Strange?" she said, and there was such a pretty flush in her cheeks, and such an odd light in her blue eyes. She sat down near the window and seemed to be waiting for something.

He crossed the room to her side. He noticed how quickly she drew her breath.

"Sophie, I have something to tell you, may I?"

"Surely," she said, her eyes fastened on her fingers playing nervously with the folds of her dress.

"Dear, I want to talk of love—a man's love that has been growing until now it is too strong for silence. Since that night when you wore my flowers to your first ball I have thought only of you."

He did not notice how her fingers grew still and the red faded out of her cheeks as she shrank away from him.

"Sophie, do you love me, and will you be my wife?"

Silence for a minute, and he could not understand the way she looked at him. Then, as she turned away and covered her face with her hands, he thought it joy and lost all fear of a refusal.

"Sophie"——

"I think," she interrupted, hesitatingly, "that—there—is some one else"——

"Oh, you mean old Marley?" he laughed. "I always suspected it, but I don't suppose he ever means to tell you so."

"One moment," she said suddenly, going to the door of that back room. Gently, but imperatively, she called "Mr. Marley!" and before she had got back to Strange's side Jack appeared in the doorway.

Ned grew white and clenched his hands. Then the girl spoke in a clear voice:

"Mr. Marley, I wish you to hear. This—gentleman—has just asked me to marry him—himself—do you understand?"

Strange tried to stop her, and his eyes fell before one contemptuous look in Marley's.

"This is my answer, Mr.—Strange. You have done me an honor which it is impossible for me to accept—since I am going to—marry—some one else."

Both men started. At length Strange laughed sneeringly.

"So, you've tricked us both? May we know the successful rival?"

She blushed then, but bravely looked at them both and went bravely over to the man at the door.

"Jack, if he will have me," she said simply, slipping her hand into his.

"Sophie"—

"Yes, Jack. I was there behind the curtain. I heard you—and you're not a bit old; you're—well, just the dearest man in the world!"

When she reappeared from the embrace of those big, strong arms, Strange was gone.—[New York Recorder.

Hawaiian Names.

The following names of our proposed new citizens were to be found a few years ago on the taxpayers' list at Honolulu:

M. Scissors, The Thief, the Wandering Ghost, The Fool, The Man Who Washes His Dimples, Mrs. Oyster, The Tired Lizard, The Husband of Kaneia (a male deity), The Great Kettle, The First Nose, The Atlantic Ocean, The Stomach, Poor Pussy, Mrs. Turkey, The Tenth Heaven.

The same names are bestowed indiscriminately upon males and females. A man living upon Bertania street, Honolulu, is called The Pretty Woman (Wahine Maikai); a male infant was lately christened Mrs. Tompkins; one little girl is named Samson (Kamekona), another the Man; Susan (Kukeua) is a boy, so are Polly Sarah, Jane Peter, and Henry Ann. A pretty little maid has been named by her fond parents The Pig Sty (Hale Pua). A relative hints at luxury in the diet of the coming man, calling the boy The Rat Eater (Kamea Oii Ole).

An old servant in Dr. Wright's family, at Kohala, caused her grandchild to be baptized in the church The Doctor (Kauka). This, as is the case with all the other names here mentioned, is the only designation. By way of compliment to the early physicians, many children were named after their drugs, as Joseph Squills, Miss Rhubarb, The Emetic. Names of uncomplimentary purport are willingly borne by their owners, while others convey a pleasing and graceful sentiment, among the latter The Arch of Heaven (Ka Pia Lani), The River of Twilight (Ka Wia Liula), The Delicate Wreath (Ka Lei maka Lili.)

The Rev. Dr. Coan of Hawaii possesses the love of his flock. One morning a child was presented for baptism, whose name was given by the parents, Mikia. The ceremony finished, the parents assured the doctor that they had named the baby for him. "But my name is not Michael," said the doctor, supposing Mikia to be aimed thereat. "We always hear your wife call you mikia," answered the mother. She had mistaken Mrs. Coan's familiar "my dear" for her husband's proper appellation.—[Boston Gazette.

Do Ants Talk.

I once saw a drove of the small black ants moving, perhaps to better quarters. The distance was some 150 yards. Most all which came from the old home carried some of the household goods. Some had eggs, some had what might have answered for their bacon or meat; some had one thing and some had another. I sat and watched them closely for over an hour. I noticed that every time two met in the way they would hold their heads together as if greeting each other, and no matter how often the meeting took place this same thing occurred, as though a short chat were necessary.

To prove more about it, I killed one who was on his way. Others being eye-witnesses to the murder, went with speed, and with every ant they met this talking took place as before. But instead of a pleasant greeting, it was sad news they had to communicate. I know it was sad news, for every ant that these parties met hastily turned back and fled on another course, as much as to say, "for the king's sake and for your safety do not go there, for I have seen a monster, just behind, that is able to destroy us all at one blow. I saw him kill one of our family. I do not know how many more are killed." So the news spread, and it was true. How was the news communicated if not by speech?—[Magazine of Natural History.

Bleaching Sponges.

The bleaching of sponges is either done by an acid process, which somewhat weakens the fiber, or by lathering them with soap and hanging them in the sun for several days, which is much the preferable way. The chief test of a sponge's quality is by feeling of the surface—soft ones being preferable—and by attempting to tear tear as it is almost impossible to tear a good one with the hands. Every portion of the sponge is used—the fine soft ones for the bath—the small ones to the druggist and hospital—hundreds of thousands of all shapes and sizes to the furniture makers, and carriage makers, and cane and umbrella makers who use them for the gluing and fine varnishing—while even the little clippings and scraps go to the makers of liquid shoe polish for the little swab, that the blackening is laid on with. The paper factories, distillers and breweries also find use for sponges, and all the year round the process of fishing, cleaning and sorting goes on, while abundant nature tries to supply the deficit made by these fierce inroads—yet every year the finer varieties are growing scarcer, and a society formed this year to ask for protective legislation shows the drift of better opinion. One of the varieties particularly prized is known as a "roller," since it grows on a stick or slender projection and rolls around in the tide.—[Washington Star.

THE KEELEY CURE AS A PENALTY.

It is stated by a Western exchange that the city of Lemars, Iowa, has shown its faith in the bichloride treatment for drunkenness by including it with the penalties for public drunkenness. Any person convicted the second time of drunkenness on the public streets is to be given his choice between working on the street for ten days with a ball and chain, and a course of treatment with the Keeley cure. It is stated that the ordinance has already gone into effect, and that there have been several cases under it, the accused selecting the cure in place of the ball and chain and the compulsory improvement of the Lemars highways.

This is an innovation that ought to become very popular. There is doubt in some minds whether society has the right to deprive a man against his will of his appetite for ardent spirits. The authorities of Lemars have very wisely refrained from doing that, and from raising the question which compulsory treatment of drunkards in that fashion would raise. Instead thereof they give the drunkard his choice.

If he regards his thirst as an inestimable boon, which he will on no account sacrifice, he can retain it at the cost of a few days labor on the thoroughfares of the town with certain impediments which the law provides against too rapid work. But if, on the other hand, he is willing to part with his friendship for Johnnie Barleycorn the public will take it away without charge. There is a tender and thoughtful consideration in this for the bibulous person which is worthy of commendation.

IT TAKES TIME AND MONEY

Leading horiculturists complain that that interest does not receive sufficient official recognition in the Department at Washington. Several important branches of the subject, such as vegetable gardening, have no division allotted them, while floriculture, ornamental gardening and the nursery interest are squeezed together, and placed in the division of Pomology. The CAROLINIAN would remind them, however, that the Department itself is comparatively new, and it takes time and money to secure perfection in anything.

Anything comparable to the Naval display in Hampton Roads has never occurred in the history of the World's Navies. There is no doubt of this, because there never were such war vessels as rode at anchor off Fortress Monroe.

There is much good evidence that the more water cows can be induced to drink the more milk they will give. Some dairymen feed extra amount of salt to accomplish this end. But the cream or butter cannot be increased by such means.

The "Atlanta Constitution" tells of a Georgia clergyman who preached from the text: "Many are called, but few are chosen," and who discovered the next day that every male member of his church was an applicant for the postoffice!

It is stated that one reason for the Democracy's ardent desire to abolish Reciprocity is to pave the way for a Sugar tariff. While Reciprocity treaties remain the people are assured of free sugar.

The spoils devil never came so near flying away with a party as he is just now. The Administration's toes hardly touch the ground and the strain on its suspenders is manifestly prodigious.

Poor Wayne MacVeagh! He is already dissatisfied with his new Democratic friends. They do not seem to take to Mugwump gruel as readily as he expected.

It is always easier to subtract from than add to in nature, but, in case of an Administration like ours, it is always easier to add to than subtract from, politically.

If Uncle Sam would buy less home silver and foreign manufactured articles from abroad he would have more gold in his pocket.

The Democratic party never was fit to have entire control of the country, and there are no present indications that it ever will be.

This, says a cotemporary, is going to be an Administration of unredeemed promises. It's Democratic, you know!

The people value their statesmen, but are never more pleased than when a Congress or Legislature adjourns.

Illinois is disgusted with its Legislature. Funny, too, when it is a Democratic body.

The World's Fair was opened at Chicago on Monday with imposing ceremonies.

THE JAMES CITY AFFAIR

The James City affair is ended. The history of the case shows that the colored people had a good deal of equity and justice on their side.

The town is located opposite Newberne, the river Trent dividing. It was a barren waste which, in 1862, was occupied by the Confederates as winter quarters, and was abandoned when Newberne was evacuated. A large number of negroes following the Federal army there, Gen. settled them in the barracks over the river. They went to putting up houses and in the belief that they had been given the land by the United States government, they felt at home. They named it "James City," in honor of their benefactor. They laid out streets, drew up a system of government, elected mayor, aldermen and policemen, and the population increased rapidly, now being near 4,000.

Some ten or more years ago Mr. J. A. Bryan, of Newberne, claiming title to the land, undertook to obtain possession. It was resisted in the Courts, but was finally decided by the Supreme Court, a short time ago, in Mr. Bryan's favor. He then made the occupants a proposition to lease, which, as the CAROLINIAN is informed was accepted; he then changed it, making the terms harder, and this was accepted; he again altered the terms, making them still more stringent. Losing confidence, the colored people declined acceptance and decided to remain in possession until evicted by force.

The dilly-dallying engendered bad feeling, and the excitement culminated in calling out the State Guard. They were met by the people of James City with demonstrations of cordial feeling. A stand was erected, decorated with flowers, from which the Governor spoke. The result of it all was a written proposition by Mr Bryan which was accepted, and now all is again "quiet on the Trent."

——The CAROLINIAN has this to say: Justice is justice, no matter who are the parties concerned. After living in peaceful and what they believed rightful possession of their homes for so long a time, adding to their value by improvements, it is a hardship to have all taken from them. Make a self case of it.

COMMENCE IN A SMALL WAY.

It is better for the farmer in moderate circumstances to commence with the improved breeds of stock in a small way and grow into a full supply than to make large purchases. The new breeds demand a little different care and treatment than is given to the common stock, consequently better results are had when the farmer grows gradually into possession of a herd or flock of improved animals.

The failure in stock business where improved animals are mainly handled can generally be traced to lack of knowledge how to manage the stock in order to bring them to a higher state of development on an economical basis. Extravagance in purchase prices often leads to extravagance in care and maintenance, generally resulting in a cost of production greatly in excess of market prices for the animals.

The most successful stock-growers are those who commence on a small scale and grow up with the business learning economy and cost of production by years of experience and practical work with the industry.

Some curious things will be seen on the World's Fair grounds if all the cranks have their way. One good woman from Kansas wants to open a "Mending Bureau" on the grounds. She thinks that a great many men may lose a button or some women tear a skirt, and she predicts that there would be a pile of money in the mending privilege.

LITERARY NOTICES.

THE MAY ECLECTIC shows a carefully selected variety of articles from the best foreign magazines. The number opens with John Addington Symond's valuable essay on "The New Spirit," consipering the Reformation in its various social, religious and artistic aspects. An important account of "Recent Science," "What is a Nation," and a psychologic paper upon "The Dream as a Revelation," need no comment. "The Private Life of Renaissance Florentines" is described by the Italian writer Guido Biagi—and Mrs. Crosse's "Packet of Old Letters" shows her usual charm of style. One of the most forceful articles in the number, bearing the somewhat enigmatical title "Poor Abel," is a cry of righteous indignation from Ouida, condemning the popular tendency to canonize social and political malefactors of to-day, while their victims are forgotten. An article upon Mr. Wm. Watson's Poetry will be found of literary interest, as is also a timely discussion of the late M. Taine's critical and literary methods. In the descriptive articles are "French Canadian Habitant," "Stay Notes on Artistic Japan," and "How to See Antwerp." The translation of Goethe's poem "The God of Greece," which woke so much controversy in the poetical world, is by Sir Theodore Martin, who by many is regarded as England's future laureate. The issue contains also two briefer poems and a short story of merit.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY FOR MAY.—The idyllic and historic Bronx Valley, sympathetically described by one of its residents, Dr. Peter MacQueen, and illustrated with a score of charming views, occupies with vernal seasonability the front place in Frank Leslies's Popular Monthly for May. Another timely paper, bearing as it does upon the question of a National Quarantine for the United States, is the graphic sketch of "Caribbean Quarantine" experience, by Henry Herbert Muckross, An exciting narrative of the ascent of Mount Etna is accompanied by numerous views of the great Sicilian volcano, and its recent eruption. Among the other illustrated articles are the "World's Fair Fisheries Exhibit," by Charles Bradford Hudson; an entertaining account of Chinese cuisine and restaurant life in Mott street, New York city, by that vivacious journalist, Don Seitz; "Persian Pottery," by James Bassett, the eminent Orientalist; and "Carnivorous Plants," by Colonel Nicolas Pike. The department of fiction includes an exquisite story by Paul Bourget, the author of "Cosmopolis," entitled "Don Griffi."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, April 28, 1893.

"Notwithstanding all the talk to the contrary," said a Democratic Senator who has a reputation for going straight at any point he wishes to reach, and little patience with those who adopt a roundabout route, "this admiuistration is going to issue bonds, and nobody knows it any better than Mr. Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, and in my opinion they will issue them before the first of July." That seems to be the opinion of all those who have given the subject any study, and it is probable that the present attitude of the administration on the subject was assumed for the purpose of being able to meet the criticisms certain to be made when it becomes certain that bonds will be issued by the statement that all other suggested expedients had been tried and that their failure had compelled the issue of bonds. Indeed it has been positively asserted by a personal friend of Secretary Carlisle that Mr. Cleveland wanted to issue $50,000,000 of bonds last week, and would have done so had not Mr. Carlisle stood so firmly against it and finally told him that he might get another Secretary of the Treasury to issue them as he would not, until everything else had been tried.

Mr. Cleveland's proposition to the Wall street men to borrow $50,000,000 in gold from them for one year at 3 per cent interest, and in default of payment at the end of the year to issue bonds for that amount did not strike the average mind as very brilliant one. It was declined, however, because the Wall street men did not wish to take any chances about bonds; they wanted them issued, or a definite promise made that they will be issued at a stated time. There is a disposition to criticise Mr. Cleveland for having taken this financial business into his own hands, but as a distinguished Republican Senator remarked, "It is Cleveland and not Carlisle who will be held responsible for the success or failure of the financial policy adopted by the administration."

It is stated by those who know what is going on in inside administration circles that the reason for the Democratic attack on reciprocity, which Mr. Cleveland and his advisers have made up their minds to destroy by annulling all the treaties made by the Harrison administration, is that it stands in the way of putting sugar and coffee back on the dutable list, from which they were taken by a Republican Congress. No duty can be levied upon sugar or coffee coming from any country which has a treaty granting their free entry into the United States, hence the determination to wipe out the treaties. The programme is for the administration to get all the reciprocity treaties out of the way before Congress gets ready to pass the administration tariff bill, which is to put a duty upon sugar, coffee and probably tea. The small wage earners and farmers of the country cannot fail to appreciate at its full value this bit of Democratic statesmanship, which will materially increase their living expenses with no possibility of benefiting them to even the slightest degree.

Simmons Liver Regulator, bear in mind, is not an experiment. It is endorsed by thousands.

Jove Outdone.

Pittsburg Gazette.

Had old Jove, who is credited with having thrown thunderbolts around to amuse himself, been present at the meeting of the Friendly Scientific club last night, which was held in the Standard Underground Cable Company on Sixteenth street, he would have confessed himself to be out classed, for the Friendly people not only tossed thunderbolts, but they threw lightning around in a most reckless manner.

The Friendly club, which is composed of about forty scientific students of the East End, all experts in electricity, at their meeting last night made the first practical demonstration of Nikola Tesla's latest and greatest invention, the high frequency electrical current.

The electrical display and entertainment was in charge of Professor Fisher, head electrician for the Standard Underground Cable Company and also chief electrician for for the Bell Telephone Company at Pittsburg. Prof. Fisher has spent some time in studying the high frequency current and he was assisted in his experiments last night by Prof. Bradney Speer, instructor in physics in the central high school, and Prof. Harris, assistant electrician of the cable company.

Mr. Fisher at the outset read a carefully prepared paper on the great discovery of Tesla. He explained that the high frequency current, whose alternations run up into the thousands per second, did not need a metalic circuit to make it complete, as do the usual electric currents of to-day, but the new current would to a great extent use the air as a conductor.

The professor, assisted by Mr. Speer, then set to work to demonstrate the working of the new current to his audience. He had connected a small wire to his new battery, and holding the wire in the air by a non-conducting wand he allowed the currant to run through it. The effect was most beautiful. The electricity ran up the wire in a colored stream, and when the blind end of the wire was reached the colored sparks leaped off into air.

The test came when Prof. Speer was instructed to take in his hand a pair of common steel pincers and hold them within six inches of the flashing wire. The effect was magical. No sooner had the steel instrument approached within eight inches of the charged wire than a stream of fire shot out to meet it. The stream of fire was about the thickness of a lead pencil and waved and zig-zaged like a flash of lightning.

The most peculiar feature of this current, according to Prof. Fisher, was its great penetrating powers, which was in the main counteracted by the human body. In demonstration of this he had the pincers again pull forth a small shaft of lightning from the wire and then thrust a book between the wire and the pincers. In a twinkling the pamphlet of 100 pages was perforated by the electric flame, which then continued its waving communication with the ground.

The prettiest and most wonderful test of the evening was reserved to the last when Prof. Fisher reduced the power to 4000 volts and holding in his hand a common electric lamp touched his wire with the pincers held in his left hand. The current passed down his arm from the pincers, through his body and lighted the lamp held in the other hand. Several beautiful and fine experiments on glass tubes were made.

A SAFE INVESTMENT.

There is no safer or better investment for small or large sums of money than the stock of

The Wright Universal Electric Co.

This Company owns some of the most valuable patents ever issued by the United States Government for Electric Lighting, Electric Batteries, Electric Motors, Electric Dynamos, and many other valuable

ELECTRICAL INVENTIONS.

This Company owns the only patent in existence for a practical ELECTRIC LAMP for HOME USE. The Company's can be carried about the house and used the same as a kerosene lamp. There is no smoke, no smell no danger, and you have a Beautiful Electric Light instead of the flattering, smoky light of an oil lamp or a gas jet.

The Wright Universal Electric Company has two large factories, both running to their full capacity, and they are unable to fill their many orders on time. Hundreds of orders are turned away because the goods cannot be made. The Company must have more factory facilities, and for that reason it is compelled to sell a limited amount of Treasury Stock. There is nothing which pays such on the amount invested as first-class Electrical Stocks. If you had purchased a few shares of the Bell Telephone Stock, or the Edison Electric Stock, or the Thompson-Houston Electric Stock, when those companies were young, your profits on the investment would have made you rich. The stock of the Wright Universal Electric Company affords just as good an opportunity to as any electric stock which has ever been offered to the public. The Wright Universal Electric Stock will increase in value every month, and the price will be raised every month. You will never again see the time when you can buy it as low as we are now offering it. If you want to buy a stock which will afford perfect safety and pay big profits send for our prospectus and catalogue to-day, with price of stock, terms of payment and full particulars of our business. How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy,

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems almost a perfect cure for all diseases of Stomach and Bowels.

The North Carolinian.

Wednesday. May 3, 1893

☞ Farmers busy at work.

☞ Cotton planting has begun.

☞ The regular fishing season is over

☞ Some of our truckers have been shipping strawberries for a week.

☞ The early pea crop is well advanced. Shipments will begin this week.

☞ There will be ess area planted in cotton in this section than for several years.

☞ The Nag's Head Hotel has been leased by J. B. Brockett & Co., of this City. They secured the steamer "Olive" for the season.

☞ On Friday last Mr. Emmett M. Leavett and Miss Carrie B. Wonnycott, of Portsmouth, Va., were married in this City by Rev, J. W. Stiff, of the Methodist Church.

☞ The guests of the Met leese Hotel at Columbia, who ate muffins at breakfast one morning last week became alarmingly sick, poison evidently having been put in them.

☞ Those who would avail themselves of our grand offer for choice cheap reading, as announced in another column, should do so at once, as, after two weeks more, the offer will be withdrawn.

☞ The 28th annual session of the Roanoke Missionary Baptist Association. Colored, will be held in the Olive Branch Baptist Church at Elizabeth City, on the 23rd, 24th and 25th of May.

☞ Lie't Colonel D. M. Bogart, of Washington, was killed at Newbern last Thursday by falling from a frightened horse. His age was 47 years. Very sad. He has been a member of the State Guard since 1877.

☞ An Ocracoke patron, on renewing his subscription, writes: "I have been taking your paper a good many years, and I like it better and better every year. It gets better and better as the years roll by." That is what we are trying all the while to do—to make it "better and better."

☞ Read the article "Jove Outdone" in another column. Besides being specially interesting, it chronicles the successful scientific experiments of a North Carolina young man—the son of the editor's esteemed friend Abram Fisher, of Dymond City, in Martin county.

☞ The CAROLINIAN feels to condole with Mr. and Mrs A. J. Austin, of Poplar Branch, in the death of their son and only child Charles W., which occurred on the 20th ult. His age was 23 years. These disdensations are among the hard things to reconcile and bear in this life.

☞ Dr. Warren C. Spencer, a capitalist from Boston, spent several days here last week. He submitted a plan to a number of our leading business men for organizing a Company for building factories and introducing manufacturing enterprises in Elizabeth City. The matter is under consideration.

☞ Colonel Wood and Adjutant Albertson who, in response to orders left and joined the State Guards at Goldsboro, and proceeded with the Regiment to Newberne, returned on Thursday. While they are prudently reticent, both intimate that it is unjust to lay all the blame on the James City people. A brief history of the affair will be found on the editorial page.

☞ J. H. Parker esq., Member from Perquimans and the Populist leader of the Legislature, was in the City on Monday, and gave the CAROLINIAN a call He made a good record. He gave a graphic account of the methods and action of the Bourbon Solons, and he has a few facts and figures that will make some mighty interesting reading in the next campaign,

☞ It is not an uncommon thing to make a man eat his own words, or to cram them down his throat, but it is rather an unusual proceeding for a prisoner to eat the evidence of his guilt, and do it right in open court in the bargain! Whaley, the Buffalonian, raised a money order, and when arraigned in court picked up the order and ate it. The Judge ordered him to suspend digestion at once and take an emetic, but the plan failed to work.

☞ How many CAROLINIAN readers, old and young, have read with pleasure and profit the poems of the gifted Miss Lucy Larcum, who died a few weeks ago. What was probably her last poem was published the week before her death. The opening stanza reads:

Beside the road I dreamed of Heaven;
I heard its far-off fountains play:
I heard the songs of souls forgiven,
Like birds that chant the birth of day.
I dreamed I saw an angel come
Down from those heights and lead me home.

It is a dream that one would wish to have in one's last days on earth, and in this case the dreamer was scarcely awakening before the dream came true.

☞ The appointive offices seem to be the point of discussion now.

☞ To get the local news you have got to take the CAROLINIAN.

..... Melick's Baby Carriage from $5 up,

☞ With all classes of stock cleanliness is a great promoter of health and thrift.

—You risk nothing in buying of Robinson & Co. All goods are warranted.

☞ Died at Salem yesterday morning, Mrs Geneva, wife of Mr. J. P. Eves, aged about 24 years.

☞ Better hold unto a sure thing than to change to an uncertainty; an ounce of fact is worth more than a pound of theory.

.....Wall Paper at Melick's; complete line and lowest prices. Country Merchants furnished with samples.

☞ It may be well in times of victory to sound the cymbals and beat the drums, but the most triumphant thing in the world is the cackling of a hen.

☞ In reply to "Leumas" the CAROLINIAN will state that the fractional currency issued during the war was redeemed, a d either burned or macerated.

.....Try Robinson & Co's French Peas California Peaches, Cherries, Apricotts and Pears,

☞ "A judicious admixture of brains and elbow grease is a boss fertilizer," and it might be added that without a reasonable supply of each, failure in agricultural pursuits is a sure crop.

—A nice assortment of fine black dress goods at reduced prices at Fowler & Co.'s If you can't call and examine send for samples.

☞ There is a very general complaint of "scarcity of money" and of "hard times." The CAROLINIAN is no pessimist, but it predicts a continuance—no change for the better during this Administration.

☞ The CAROLINIAN is asked to settle a dispute by stating whether there is any difference in area between a foot square and a square foot? There is no difference when confined to a single foot.

—Our store is all Stove Up; that is to say we've got our stoves up for inspection in such quantity that they fill one side of our store. Robinson & Co.

☞ It may be remarked that the millennium which was advertised last fall, by the Cleveland advocates, to appear about this time is not visible above the national horizon.

PHOTOGRAPHS. Mr. Viggo Lund, in charge of ENGLE'S PICTURE GALLERY, on Water street, is prepared to take all kind of Pictures in the latest and best styles. Call and examine specimens and get price

☞ It is a harrowing fact for 5,000,000 hungry and thirsty Democrats that there are only 183,488 offices in the country, and a large share of them are under civil service regulations.

—BEFORE YOU TRAVEL call upon M. B. Culpepper, Ticket Agent, Elizabeth City, N. C., or address Arthur G. Lewis, Passenger and Ticket Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, 76 Main street, Norfolk Va.

☞ The more thoughtful, studious and businesslike the farmer is, the more will he prosper in his vocation, and the more honor will he be accorded by his fellow men. Farmers, get your boys started right in this matter.

—A lot of boys suits at $1.25 a suit and a few boys overcoats at $1.25 each a Fowler & Co.'s to close, also a lot of broken sizes in men's suits that will be sold a cut price.

☞ Words often change much in the course of time. The word "idiot" once meant a private citizen, as distinguished from a public official. It largely due to the earnest efforts of the State legislatures of this country that the meaning has become reversed.

—Ladies and Misses Newmarkets, $2.50 each at Fowler & Co.'s. They were carried over from last year and must be sold. Also a lot of children's cloaks, size from from four to six years, from $1.25 up.

First-Class Brick: The "Thompson Brick Works" manufacture the best brick for building and all other purposes made in this section. They are well burned and are "all right" in every respect. All orders promptly filled. Address F. G Thompson, manager, Elizabeth City, N C

—THE ROYAL BLUE LINE is the finest and fastest Railroad in the world. Address Arthur G. Lewis, Passenger and Ticket Agent, Norfolk, Va., or apply to M. B. Culpepper, Elizabeth City, N. C., for lowest rates to all points.

☞ Men are only grown up boys. The old schoolmaster, who always devoted the first weeks of a new class to convincing his pupils that they were utterly and hopelessly ignorant, was a wise man in his generation. When he found them wholly humiliated and distressed at the density of their ignorance, he at once applied the salve to their lacerated feelings, and from that time on had them eagerly drinking knowledge as fast as he could prepare the doses. So it is with some of our brethren in all the walks of life; the very fact that they "know it all" leaves no space in their minds for acquiring anything else.

☞ Cotton at Norfolk: Good middling 7 13-16; middling, 7 1-2; low middling 7 1-16; goodordinary, 6 7-15. Corn, 51

☞ The steamer "John W. Garrett," has been put on the line to and from Newbern as a freight boat, to run on alternate days from the "Neuse."

☞ Messrs John D. Mitchell and Lloyd B. Jones, residing in lower Camden, while out hunting for cattle in the Marsh, on the edge of North River one day last week, they discovered a man buried in a rough box without lid, evidently having been dead over a year, as the clothing was very rotten. Who was he, and how came he there?

LOCAL MENTION

Let Improvement and Progress be the watchwords.—He who does not engage in the quarrels of others will have few of his own.—With its magnificent shade trees in gorgeous green, how beautiful Main street now appears.—A smart affair, a mustard plaster.—The CAROLINIAN again calls attention to the condition of the pavements, especially in front of the Albemarle House. Why isn't the "sixty day" ordinance enforced?—Attention is called to the advertisement of McCabe & Grice, the live young merchants on Water street. They mean fair and square business.—The Versifier, after commending the sanitary precautions ordered by the authorities, remarks:

They can disinfect and quarantine,
And work as hard as a beaver,
To make the city sweet and clean,
But they can't keep out Spring Fever.

—The basket of large and luscious strawberries, Lovett's Early, sent us by Mr. George D. Pool the other day, was appreciated. They were the earliest and finest we have seen this season.—Cold comfort, a sherry cobler.—The local circulation of the CAROLINIA is still increasing. All appear to want to read it.—See the advertisement of Kramer Bros. & Co. They are the leading lumber manufacturers in this city and do an immense business.—"What does a marriage license cost?" inquired an applicant of the Register the other day. "Three dollars down and the ballance all your life," was the reply.—No animal steals a man's heart so quickly as an intelligent dog.—A hypocrite is one-third thief and two-thirds liar.—The local poet reminds us that

Coming, coming are the sultry days,
Where countless terrors lurk,
When the house-fly o'er the butter plays
And lightning does its work.

"That's a curious milk pail of yours," said the milkman. "Tain't near so curious as that pale milk of yours," replied the servant girl.—Selig, the jeweler, is just now opening a handsome line of fine watches and seasonable personable and parlor ornaments.—Mr. W. P. Ayer and wife, with their charming daughter, Miss Tennie, of Boston, are spending a few weeks here, stopping with Mr. T. R. Bland on Upper Main street. Mr. Ayer is owner of the 13000 acre "Fountain Tract" in Camden. He called the other day and spent, to us, a very pleasant half hour.—The man who can clip his coupons generally cuts quite a figure.—The Rambler reports continued activity in house building.—The "Observation Social" at the residence of Mrs. E. G. Thompson on Thursday night, was a very entertaining affair.—Felix Jones, esq., of Camden, called and paid his respects on Saturday. He reports that the frost last week damaged the corn and potatoe crops in his section.—Speaking of the Old Songs, the Reminder says:

The birds that sang for Adam's ear
Have long since passed away,
But just the same songs that they sang
Are sung by birds to-day.

—The world is full of people who want to do good, but they are in no hurry to commence.—Sewerage and Water Works are two matters that should begin to claim the earnest attention of our people.—The Listener overheard the following: "Is Dentistry a branch of Surgery, or what is it?" "Interior Decorating" was the reply.—The shopping woman is impressed with the belief that there is something good in store for her.—There was another large crowd of people in town on Saturday.—Excellent sermons were delivered to appreciative congregations on Sunday.—The Milliner would soon be swamped if she didn't know how to trim her sales.—Rev. Dr. F. H. Johnston attendad the Albemarle Presbytery, at La Grange last week, and preached the opening sermon.—Mr. J. W. Dunn, on Green street, had peas, from his lot, for his Sunday dinner, He made a shipment on Monday. He has had lettuce, raddishes and onions from his garden ever since the 22nd of February. Good for a crippled veteran soldier!—Several of the famishing "hungry and thirst" in our town are declaring

I want an office, and want it bad,
And if I don't get it I'll be mad.

As all can't get one some of 'em will be "mad," certain.—E. F. Lamb esq., attended the Press Convention at Newberne last week.—The CAROLINIAN acknowledges social visits on Monday from Messrs J. W. Halstead of Lilly, and S. W. Woodley of Cressewell.—Deputy Collector W. G. Pool left on Monday for Raleigh, on official business.—Col. H. C. Hudgins, Gen. Passenger and Freight Agent of the Norfolk & Southern Railroad, was in town on Monday, and on passing dropped in and gave us a pleasant chat, made inquiry about the crops, etc.—Hon. C. D. Pendleton, of the Key West, Fla., "Democrat," arrived yesterday, on a visit to his father here.—"Old Sol" put in some HOT work the past few days.—our colored friend W. C. Bowser, of Skyco, Dare county, called yesterday. He reports that fishing was a failure in his locality.—During the past seven weeks 36 new members have been added to the Baptist Church here.—Mr. J. Wilkins is having piles driven for another wharf on his Dry Point property.—Judge Bynum, Solicitor Blount and several of our lawyers left on the "Neuse" last night for Manteo, to hold Dare Court to-day.—Rev. J. D. Huffam will preach at the Baptist Church to-morrow night.

La Grippe

During the prevalence of the Grippe the past season it was a noticeable fact that those who depended upon Dr King's New Discovery, not only had a speedy recovery, but escaped all of the troublesome after effects of the malady. This remedy seems to have a peculiar power in effecting rapid cures not only in La Grippe, but in all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, and has cured cases of Asthma and Hay Fever of long standing. Try it and be convinced. It won't disappoint. Free Trial Bottles at Alex Wadsworth's Drug Store.

Highly Improved Field Seed.

To raise pork for 2½ cents per pound you should plant the Improved Jerusalem Artichoke, quite distinct from the common pickling kind; little or no trouble to cultivate; suits any section of the U. S.; yields 400 to 1000 bushels per acre; an acre in them will fatten 30 to 40 head large hogs. Price, 3 lbs., post-paid, 75c; by express or freight as follows: Peck $1; half bushel $1.50, bushel $2.50, barrel of three bushels $6. A barrel is required to plant an acre. Full directions for cultivating, feeding &c. with every order.

We have the "Farmer's Pride" field corn, highly improved by ourselves for 27 years past, acknowledged by leading Agricultural Experiment Stations and thousands of leading farmers to be the best, prettiest and most prolific corn known. Quite early, matures in 100 days; pure white, has large very deep grained ears, grains are very flaty; weighs 60 pounds to the bushel; often shells over a pound of corn from a single ear; grains are nearly an inch long, very wide and flinty. It has taken over 50 first-class premiums in different corn-growing States in the past seven years. Last, but not least, we guarantee it to make at least a fourth more per acre on same quality of land than if planted in any other crop. Notice this. We will give $100.00 in cash for a sample of better white field corn. Prices: Samples 10c, package of half pound 25c, three pounds $1, post-paid. By freight or express as follows: Half peck $1, peck $1.50, half bushel $2.50, bushel $4. All over this amount at one time $3.50 per bushel.

We have also the wonderful Texas Paper Shell Pecan Trees, perfectly hardy anywhere an oak or hickory grows. Nuts three times the size of the ordinary hard shell. Fine one year trees by express $1 for three, $3 per dozen; 27 enough for an acre; $6 per 100, or more 20c each,

"Myself and my wife have taken several bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla with gratifying results. For years I have had kidney trouble, and also heart difficulty. I was unable to sleep on my left side for years. Hood's Sarsaparilla has done me a great deal of good. I am free from kidney trouble, and can sleep on either side now, thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla. My wife has had a chronic sore throat for more than 20 years. It always troubled her more or less, but for the last 6 months, since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, she has not had a sore throat except once when she took a slight cold. We cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as a good reliable medicine for the blood and to build up the system; I consider it the best medicine in use." GRANT W. BARNES.

THE LIBERTY BELL.

Started to Chicago With a Fine Display in Philadelphia.

There was a fine show of patriotism at Philadelphia, Penn., when the famous Liberty Bell began its journey from Independence Hall to Chicago.

Extensive preparations had been made by the Council's joint special committee for the event. The bell was lowered from its position in Independence Hall and placed in the hall opposite the museum, where it was viewed by throngs. Then it was placed upon a truck specially constructed for the purpose and escorted by Philadelphia's contingent of the Pennsylvania National Guard to the Pennsylvania Railroad depot at Thirty-second and Market streets, whence the train bearing the bell and its escort left for Chicago.

The parade formed at Independence Hall under the chief leadership of Brigadier-General Robert P. Dechert, and, headed by a detachment of police, moved amid the waving of flags and banners and the music of regimental bands. At the Union League the parade was reviewed by Mayor Stuart. Decorations throughout the city were general.

The streets through which the procession passed were crowded by thousands, who cheered and waved handkerchiefs as though the historic relic was a thing of life. It was 4:15 o'clock when the bell, mounted on a huge truck trimmed with flowers and flags and drawn by six bay horses, left Independence Hall. Two hours and a quarter later it arrived at the Pennsylvania Railroad freight yards, and at 7 o'clock was hoisted onto the car. The bell is guarded by four stalwart policemen, who will remain with it until the close of the Fair.

MRS. MARY CAMPBELL, of Mohawk, Holmes County, Ohio, died there the other night, age 103. She was born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1790, and came to America in 1858. Since then she has always lived on the same farm. She was the mother of nine children, and had thirty-one grandchildren and twenty-one great-grandchildren.

CHOLERA now exists in a larger number of towns in Europe than when the epidemic was at its height last September.

PRISON LOCKS DEFIED.

Two Condemned Murderers Walk Through Sing Sing's Walls.

Frank W. Rohl and Thomas Pallister, two murderers, under sentence of death, escaped from the prison at Sing Sing, N. Y., a few nights ago.

The escape took place from the "death house" between 8 and 9 o'clock, and was effected by the murderers locking Night Watch J. H. Hulse and James W. Murphy in their cells.

Pallister asked Guard Hulse to give him a drink of milk, and as the bars of the cell are so narrow, Hulse opened the door to pass the milk in, when Pallister grabbed him and disarmed him. He then shoved him in the cell and locked the door.

Keeper Murphy was then overpowered by Pallister, and was also disarmed and shoved into one of the cells. Under penalty of death Pallister made both keepers keep quiet while he released Rohl.

Then Pallister grabbed Day Guard Darrenbacher's hat, took up the iron stove shaker, and climbed up the screen to a scuttle, which is in the ceiling. They pried the scuttle off and then pried the roof off, which is nothing but pine boards, covered with tar paper.

Next they jumped to the ground, and, according to their footprints, made their way to the north end of the yard and so made their escape. A rowboat belonging to the prison, together with a pair of oars, was missing next morning.

The first intimation the principal keeper had of the escape was when Keeper Glynn rang the door bell at 5.45 next morning and told Connaughton that something was wrong. Connaughton made his way to the murderers' cells by the way the visitors generally go and found the guards locked up. The prison officials at once rang the big bell in the tower and called all the guards and keepers to the prison to search for the escaped murderers. Warden Brown says that Pallister threw pepper into the guards' eyes.

Guards Hulse and Murphy were suspended, also Officer-Guards Glynn and Maher. Glynn is supposed to make the rounds at night of murderers' row and all the shops, and Guard Maher's duties were the same.

SERVIAN COUP D'ETAT.

Alexander Arrests His Regents and Assumes the Crown.

KING OF SERVIA.

One of the boldest political strokes that has startled modern Europe was the coup d'etat of young Alexander, King of Servia, by which, in one night and without bloodshed, he arrested the three Regents who were administering the Government during his minority, and had himself annointed King in the cathedral at Belgrade. He is only seventeen years old, but is a well-developed and sensible lad, who seems to thoroughly appreciate the high responsibility resting upon him.

COLUMBIAN GUARDS RESIGN

They Strike for More Pay at the World's Fair.

Columbian Guards at the World's Fair, Chicago, Ill., just before the opening, to the number of 195 sent in their resignations, and Colonel Rice realized that he had a full-sized strike on his hands. The men who resigned comprised ten First Sergeants, twenty-five Second Sergeants, fifty Duty Sergeants and 110 of the privates.

The trouble had been brewing for some time, but the wholesale resignation of the men was an unwelcome surprise to Colonel Rice. Nearly two months before the men applied for a raise in salary. They were paid $60 a month; they demanded $70, but did not get it.

"They were not inclined to discuss the scale of wages," said one of the men, "and so we decided to quit. Then, besides, we were not fairly treated in the matter of promotions. I joined the Guard at its inception, and I am just where I started. Young aristocrats from the East, sons of army officers, as a rule have been put over my head, not from merits, but from pull. Our work has increased 100 per cent., but our salary has remained stationary."

DISASTROUS TORNADOES.

Scores of People Killed and Wounded in Oklahoma.

Two distinct tornadoes, a terrific hailstorm, and a waterspout combined to wreak awful destruction in the newly built towns in Oklahoma a few nights ago. The damage to property is very great.

At least one hundred lives were lost and five hundred persons hurt during the cyclones. Heavy storms and tornadoes also visited Texas, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

The brunt of the storm was laid upon the prosperous little town of Norman, on the Santa Fe Railroad. At that point thirty-one people were killed, dozens were injured, and the town was almost completely destroyed. Business was suspended all over the Territory, and everybody able to render any assistance to the poor unfortunates or to help remove the dead bodies were out searching along the track of the tornado.

Disastrous Collapse of an Electric Plant's Foundation in Cincinnati.

An insecure foundation to an interior wall in the Card Company's electric plant, in course of construction at Hunt street and Broadway, Cincinnati, Ohio, caused the falling of the partition wall.

Fourteen bricklayers and their helpers, engaged on the fourth story, fell with the debris into the basement. One was killed outright and seven were injured, four fatally.

DROWNED BY FOOLISHNESS.

Fatal Result of a Man's Determination to Get Ashore.

Three young men, Julius Falk, Martin Arlet and Charles Liptak, hired a boat at Cleveland, Ohio, and rowed out to the breakwater, they had been gone about an hour when Falk wanted to return, but the other two desired to stay out longer.

They were at that time alongside the east breakwater; Falk waited for his chance and took hold of an iron ring on the breakwater and said that he was going to get upon it.

He stepped on the edge of the boat, which quickly capsized, throwing them all into the water. Falk and Arlet could not swim, but they managed to get hold of the boat. It had turned upside down, and they tried to climb on top, but it rolled over like a log and they went down and were drowned. Liptak kept hold of the bow of the boat, and was almost dead when the tug Alva B picked him up. Both bodies were recovered.

KILLED IN CHURCH.

Fire Causes a Fatal Panic in an Edifice at Naples.

A fatal panic occurred the other evening in the Church of Torre Annunziata, at Naples, Italy. During the services, which were attended by a large number of persons, part of the draperies about the altar was blown against a lighted candle.

The flames spread with great rapidity and the congregation made a mad rush for the doors. The wildest excitement prevailed, and women and children were thrown to the floor and trampled upon.

The fire was quickly extinguished, and when some semblance of order was restored it was found that eight women and five children had been crushed to death, while hundreds of others had been more or less seriously injured.

IN A BURNING MINE.

Nine Men Lose Their Lives in a Shaft Near Butte, Montana.

The timbers of the pump station at the 500 foot level of the Silver Bow shaft number two, at Butte, Montana, belonging to the Butte and Boston Mining Company, caught fire.

Before an alarm could be sent through the mine nine men working in the stopes and levels were suffocated by smoke and gas.

The fire is supposed to have originated by the explosion of a lamp, of which four were kept lighted at the station.

Holders and Brushes.

Tastes differ as to the size of holders for use about the stove; some like large, thin ones, and others prefer them small and thick. It does not matter which way they are made, so you have plenty of them and use them. I make covers for them, which can be easily slipped off and washed, with a small ring or tape sewed on one corner for hanging them up. Hang near a stove, so there will be no temptation to use towels or an apron.

Besides the various kinds of scrubbing, keep one exclusively for washing vegetables; potatoes, turnips, beets, etc., can be more easily cleaned in this way than in any other.

Use a small tooth brush for cleaning around the handles of cups and tureens, and for dishes with rough surfaces, or raised designs; keep it convenient and it will be used oftener. I keep mine in a drawer of my kitchen work-table, beside my silver polish, chamois skin and other useful cleaners.

I have found a small paint or varnish brush, costing 5 cents, a useful accompaniment to the larger stove-polishing brush, as it can be made to reach into corners where the other one will not go.

A nail brush for the cook's and the children's use is indispensable. Of course there are dust brushes, crumb brushes and tooth brushes. I only mention these which I do not find in general use, but which cost little and aid much in making easier the work which many deem drudgery.—Portland Transcript.

THE Farmers' Alliance, of Washington, will have its co-operative warehouse in Tacoma whence members will ship their grain, beginning this season. Tacoma citizens give the site and bear half the expense of erecting the warehouse, which will hold 1,000,000 bushels of sacked grain.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Everything in this world depends upon will.

Stay is a charming word in a friend's vocabulary.

Wealth is not his that has it, but his that enjoys it.

There is no truth which personal vice will not distort.

Good company and good discourse are the very sinews of virtue.

There is no calamity which right words will not begin to redress.

All unnecessary vows are folly, because they suppose a prescience of the future which has not been given us.

Hans Sachs was a shoemaker, but it is no less true that incessant hammering of sole leather also hammers the cobbler's just development away. One extreme is as bad as the other. The drudge whose life is drained away in the inexorable toil of a mine or a factory is as sad an object as the prodigal, whom wealth softens into imbecility.

One voice has always a right to be heard, the voice that recalls us to ourselves. We suffer—many of us suffer every day and year after year—from a want of faith in our own being. Shall we ever get quite out of the shadow of some old half-heathenish teachings, which have made us distrust our own nature and discredit our facilities?

Would you improve? Keep raising your standard by critical comparison; and keep trying to approach it by patient aspiration and labor. Mere plodding industry, accompanied by indifference or conceit, makes little or no progress and may even steadily deteriorate. For advancement one must with faithful desire constantly see something better than he has yet attained.

The Story of Creede.

A prospector named Creede had spent a good deal of time in the mountains of southern Colorado without making his fortune, when one night his jack or donkey strayed from camp and disappeared. It will never be known whether that donkey had privately made up his mind to take a "flyer" in prospecting on his own account, although, judging by results, this view of it seems reasonable enough; but it is quite certain that Mr. Creede was a wrathy man on discovering his jack's absence, and no doubt indulged in expressions highly disapproving of the conduct of any jack that would stray off for the purpose of prospecting or anything else. It is the weakness of some jacks, however, to "skip out" whenever a good chance occurs, and at such times there is but one way to remedy the trouble—go find 'em and bring 'em back to camp. This is just what Mr. Creede did, and he never was sorry for it after coming to a full appreciation of what his jack's erratic conduct led to. He walked a long distance to find that jack, and maybe he threw away one club and cut a heavier one at the end of each mile of his tramp. I don't know how that was, but his search was finally successful in a greater degree than there had been any reason to expect, for the beast was grazing on the "croppings" of a mineral ledge, which Mr. Creede "located" and named "The Amethyst." Development-work made so good a mine of it that the locator was offered as much as $1,250,000 for it. He declined all offers, however, and in the summer of 1892 his interest in the Amethyst property was yielding him a profit of $400,000 per month. The moral of this story is that if you are going on a prospecting trip take along a jack that is a pretty good prospector himself.—[Harper's Young People.

It's a Nap You Need.

A room without a couch of some sort is only half furnished. Life is full of ups and downs, and all that saves the sanity of the mentally jaded and physically exhausted fortune fighter is the periodical good cry and momentary loss of consciousness on the upstairs lounge or the old sofa in the sitting room. There are times when so many of the things that distract us could be straightened out and the way made clear if only one had a long comfortable couch on whose soft bosom he can throw himself, boots and brains, stretch his weary frame, unmindful of tidies and tapestry, close his tired eyes, relax the tension of his muscles and give his harassed mind a chance.

Ten minutes of this narcotic when the head throbs, the soul yearns for endless, dreamless, eternal rest, would make the vision clear, nerves steady, the heart light and the star of hope shine again. There is no doubt that the longing to die is mistaken for the need of a nap. Instead of the immortality of the soul, business men and working women want regular and systematic doses of dozing—and after a mossy bank in the shade of an old oak that succeeding seasons have converted into a tenement of song birds, there is nothing that can approach a big sofa, or a low, long couch placed in the corner, where tired nature can turn her face to the wall and sleep and doze away the gloom.—[Hall's Journal.

A Hunter Stumped.

"I was telling a good, old, sincerely Christian friend of mine," said a gentleman who is extremely fond of hunting, "how I had had the good fortune to kill two dozen quail in one afternoon. He looked at me for a full minute without saying a word. Then he said: 'Why?'

"'Why?' says I.

"'Yes; why did you kill them?'

"'And to save the life of me I have not been able to frame a reasonable answer,"—[Indianapolis Journal.

About Pears.

It is remarkable that, although new fruits come to the front every year, there is not a pear yet that has been able to take the place of the Bartlett or the Seckle. The Bartlett is an European sort, originating in England and named there William's Bon Chretien. It was introduced into this country, and its name getting lost it was named Bartlett, after the man in whose garden it was when its excellent qualities were discovered.

The Seckle is a native, a chance seedling, found growing near the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia, and the original tree still stands and bears fruit. The Bartlett is in season throughout September, the Seckle from the close of September and through October. These two kinds are no exception to the rule that the quality of all pears increases in value as the trees get older. The fruit from a full-grown Seckle pear tree, for instance, is far superior to that from a tree fruiting for the first time.—Practical Farmer.

He Got the Letter.

A Mayville (N. Y.) lawyer, in search of a missing heir, became satisfied at last that the man he wanted was somewhere in Canada, but not knowing where, addressed a letter to him at every postoffice in Ontario and Quebec—nearly 4600 of them in all. One of the letters reached the addressee, and, and as his inheritance was more than $100,000, he probably won't object to the item, "Postage, $92," in the lawyer's little bill.—Detroit Free Press.

The Moors of Arabia and Spain were the first to display colored globes in drug store windows.
